So What Do We Do About Henry?

Directed by Tora Bray & Produced by Jane Sweatman
Assistant Producers Louise Enticknap and Mary Stiles

The action of the play takes place in a Cornish cottage on a cliff top, in a village a few miles from Plymouth.

Poor Henrietta. After 30 years spent caring for her uncle, she is left with only £500 and his grateful thanks. She has little option but to accept the charitable offer of a home from her charming but lazy nephew, Dino, and his long-suffering girlfriend, Elsie.

Henry, as she likes to be known, reasons that life in a cliff-top cottage in Cornwall, even with a dodgy handrail on the cliff path, and Vulcan the temperamental boiler, should be a doddle, but she soon comes to realise that the surface calm of village life is not without its undercurrents!
